

EDITORIAL

With this issue we have accomplished our second year. We have had an excellent response of colleagues all over the world. It is believed that the Eurasian Journal of Physics and Chemistry Education (EJPCE) has started to provide major contributions to the field of physics and chemistry education. It is a pleasure to introduce a new issue of EJPCE where we have interesting articles on educational research in physics and chemistry education and related disciplines. In this issue, there are 5 interesting articles in different researches domain in physics and chemistry education. We thank colleagues for contributions from Thailand, Zimbabwe, Turkey and United Kingdom.

It is gratifying to report that we achieved our goal of becoming an indexed journal. Now EJPCE is registered in the prestigious databases DOAJ (Directory of Open Access Journals), IC (Index Copernicus), Ulrich's Periodicals Directory, Google Scholar, ASOS Index (Academia Social Sciences Index), NewJour, and Open J-Gate Index. Also, currently we are preparing some additional issue on papers of IX. National Science and Mathematics Education Congress. Furthermore, we have good news because we will make the process of indexing all our papers in EBSCO Publishing, which will help us expand our presence in databases of scientific articles.

Finally, we would like to thank all people who have supported this journal, authors, referees, readers, and of course editorial and technical team.
